Jr. FHA Hears Talk On Identity

Mrs. Pauline DePew, Guidance Department at Appomattox County High School, spoke to members of the Junior Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, Appomattox Intermediate School, at their meeting on Thursday, January 31, 1974.

Using as her topic "THE BIG I IN IDENTITY", Mrs. DePew told the students that from the time we are born we build our identity from forms that are filled out on us - birth certificates, school records, applications and so forth. The dictionary definition of identity is "sameness of essential character," and we all are members of the human race but yet we are distinct and unique. Mrs. DePew went on to say that a person can be identified by voice, fingerprints, and footprints because they are individual.

When a person talks about themselves they use the "I" and "me" a number of times showing the importance of self. "A person must think 'I am important to me. 'I like me,' Mrs. DePew said, "and must study about self-consciousness, self-preservation, self-determination, and self-discipline." After talking about the big "I" in our lives, the big "I" was combined with a verb to show how we develop an identity and a philosophy of life. The different verbs that she put with the "Big I" were "I am, I think, I know, I feel, I wonder, I see, I believe, I can, I ought, I will, I serve." She ended her talk to the girls by saying that, "combining ourselves with these verbs for living gives an identity different with each one of us but we will all have an effect on the world for good or bad - with the lives we live."

Members of the Junior Chapter FHA felt that they had a better understanding of themselves after hearing the talk on "THE BIG I IN IDENTITY."

Mrs. DePew is a graduate of Jonesboro High School, Jonesboro, Tennessee, she received a B. S. degree from Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia and received her Masters degree from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. She has also attended the University of North Carolina.

Sherwill's 4-H'ers Held Family Night

Members of Sherwill 4-H Club invited their families to the Community Center to view their exhibits, to have dinner together, and to attend their meeting on January 31.

Ten members were present and five of those had nine exhibits. Those making exhibits were: Sylvia Carson, Anne Cardwell, Ann Evans, Leslie King and James Hancock III.

The meeting was presided over by the president, James Hancock III, and devotions and pledges were lead by Debbie Calohan. She also gave out a plan for the year's program, because she is first vice-president and therefore, the program chairman.

Sylvia Carson asked that the members consider working under the guidance of the Concord Rescue Squad to learn about C-PR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation).

Mrs. Janet Clement and Mrs. P. Mosley were the agents from our 4-H office to judge the exhibits and take part on the program. Mr. Carr Carson, a retired agent, was a guest and also, a judge.

Mrs. Mosley advised about the special up going events and how to take part. Share-the-Fun is to be March 1 and County Demonstration Day is to be April 6 and Public Speaking will also be on the same day. Achievement Records are to be in the 4-H office on February 11.

Mrs. Clement showed slides and talked about money management.

Yolanda Pash told the younger members about building from the beginning as preparation for fixing an achievement record after a member becomes 14 by January 1 of that year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Garrette were special guests of the club. They have worked with this club for many years and all four of their children were Virginia All-Stars.
